Since 2015, the year of Susana Rinaldi's memorable concert at Teatro Cervantes, two days of tango have been held annually at Teatro Echegaray, always with the same success. Over the years, these two brilliant evenings of tango have presented the genre's three main forms of expression, namely music, song and dance as a performing art.

The duo formed by the master guitarist Ramón Maschio, one of the greatest tango guitar soloists, and the flautist Juanma Navia is accompanied by Ed López, an Argentinian singer whose interpretation of the genre contains echoes of jazz.
The dancers Rebeca Núñez and Mariano Otero join forces in this show to demonstrate the artistic and therefore creative nature of tango-dance as a performing art.
